Your Bond Money has been put to work building Visitors Centers

Seen above is one of the two Visitors Centers being constructed in the Carolina Beach State Park. According to Adrian O'Neal, Park Ranger at the Park, the Ft. Fisher Center (seen above) will be open "hopefully" in June and the other Visitors Center, located in the State Park, is scheduled to open sometime in July. The Fort Fisher Visitors Center is located at the Beach Access area near the Fort Fisher Aquarium. This center will allow day visitors, tourists, and locals to enjoy the south end of the beach more. The Visitors Centers will be educational facilities as they will house exhibits and brochures on the habitat and resources in the beach areas as well as the State Park facilities located in the Carolina Beach State Park.
